Preface

I've had several people contact me over the years about writing a book. Alex Caine's ghostwriter contacted me after I helped him with his book Angel Dust: How The Outlaw Biker Gang Became A Criminal Empire. I thought about it but I hesitated because I didn't want anyone to change my words. I have a very hard hitting confrontational writing style. I didn't want anyone to dilute that and water it down. So I just threw out a free ebook to say what I had to say at the time.

Several years ago someone from CBC contacted me about a movie deal. I just shrugged them off and said that's not my thing. I don't do movies, I do real life and referred them to someone else. I said that's more their thing. Several years later they asked me again. Money was tight and I thought about it. We talked about a vision.

I didn't want Hollywood to do it. I didn't want them to turn it into a trailer trash skin flick. I respected CBC because they were the last stand of investigative journalism in the face of mainstream media mergers. Tragically, they too have fallen to the fake news conglomerate. Big time. Now they just spin for the chief clown in office.

In the vision we shared I explained how I didn't want it to be about me. I wanted it to be about the people I write about. The people the Hells Angels have killed over the years. I wanted to call it Finian's Inferno. Finian was the name my father gave me after I came back from spending two years in Ireland. It was from the musical Finian's Rainbow.

The deal fell through so I copyrighted the title and made a website called Finian's Inferno highlighting some of the innocent lives lost in the drug trafficker's greed. Nevertheless, I think now is the time for me to put everything on paper for the world to see. It's time for me to record my dissent before I move on so to speak. Just like Bob Marley said, "In this great future you can't forget your past."

I've been blogging about the Vancouver gang war for over 10 years now. Before that I had a past history confronting crime with the Guardian Angels in New York City. I saw the success of the New York model first hand before Bill de Blasio flushed it down the toilet and turned New York back into another Liberal sh*t hole like Cali. I was never a LA kind of guy. I was always a New Yorker at heart. I love New York. The old New York back in the day. However, New York has changed yet again and so have I.

They say circumstances don't make the man, they reveal him to himself and to the rest of the world. Indeed they do. Circumstances reveal our true character. The Gangsters out Blog has evolved over the years. The Hells Angels aren't the problem now. The World Economic Forum is and the fake environmentalism that is transforming Globalism and the Climate Change Police straight into Communism. The South has indeed risen again to bring slavery back but they've remixed it into a fake delusion of woke pedophilia and the North is still here to stop them. Stand True.

Introduction: Where we are and how we got here.

Let's begin in the middle. Go back to the beginning, then look ahead to the future. Let's examine where we are and how we got here. In the theme song for Men in Black III Pitbull said "To understand the future we have to go back into time."

Today I attended parts of the final arguments for Larry Amero's murder trial. It's somewhat fitting we start here because Larry Amero was tied to the Surrey Six which is how this blog got started.

I run gangstersout.com which links to the Gangsters Out Blog. I've been blogging about the Vancouver Gang war for over ten years. Before that I had a personal history with gangs and crime from being a Regional Coordinator with the Guardian Angels. I was in New York City back in the /80s and saw the infamous New York Model first hand during the US Crack Epidemic. Since then I have discovered a lot of interesting information about how and why that epidemic got started.

On October 10th 2014 I launched my first free ebook called Stand True: Civil Liberty and the Hells Angels Drug Trafficking Network. I launched it on the 10th anniversary of Gary Webb's murder. Gary Webb became a key figure in my understanding of the US Crack epidemic back in the /80's which I so passionately opposed.

Jeremy Renner directed and starred in a movie about the life and mission of investigative reporter Gary Webb and his Dark Alliance series tying the CIA to the US Crack Epidemic. Other books had been written before about the CIA's involvement with drug smuggling but Gary Webb found the connection between Blandon and Freeway Ricky. After this series went viral they killed him so Jeremy Renner made a movie about it based on the true story.

Another Patriot who exposed the CIA's involvement with drug smuggling during the Vietnam war was US war hero Bo Gritz. Bo Gritz was on the Morton Downey Jr. talk show explaining what he found in Vietnam. Lisa Evers was in the audience when they filmed that show and I was like what?! Lisa knew about all this way back then? That must have been when I left New York for Ireland because I certainly missed it and didn't find out about it until several years later.

Terry Reed was the CIA insider that confirmed everything Bo Gritz said in his power packed book, Compromised: Clinton, Bush and the CIA. Terry Reed documented how the CIA's drug trafficking was tied to politics which included both the Republicans and the Democrats. That's why a big part of my blog has been about connecting the dots between politics and organized crime. It's all tied together.

Jonathan Kwitny documented the CIA's creation of the Golden Triangle in his book the Crimes of Patriots. So the CIA's connection to drug trafficking is well documented and globalists like George Bush Sr and the Clinton's have been at the root of it all along.

The CIA's involvement with drug trafficking is important and ties in with us now. Operation Fast and Furious showed us that Iran Contra never stopped. This leads us to the CIA's involvement with the World Economic Forum and Globalism which is exactly what they claimed their drug trafficking was to raise money to oppose. Well they lied. Big surprise. As Mike Pompeo pointed out, lying is the CIA's method of operation.

The US Crack epidemic and Liberal Lawlessness

I was never a cop or a gang member. When I was young I joined the Guardian Angels. Most people now have no idea what that was. New York City was famous for gangs, crime and violence. Muggings occurred on the subway all the time.

In 1979 Curtis Sliwa formed a volunteer organization trained in the martial arts that would combat violent crime. They wore white T-shirts and red berets. Unlike other crime prevention organizations, they would actually step in when they witnessed violent crime and make a citizen's arrest holding the person until the police came.

For that reason the media tried to paint them as vigilantes but that was far from the truth. They were simply concerned citizens who cared about their community and made a difference. When I was young I was fascinated with the gangs of New York.

I read the book Run Baby Run which was about the life of Nicky Cruz. It was the sequel to the book Cross and the Switchblade. Both books talked about gangs, drugs and crime in New York City. Both books also had a religious element in them which the Guardian Angels did not. The Guardian Angels were people from all different racial and religious backgrounds pulling together to do something positive.

Curtis Sliwa is very outspoken and very eloquent. He was a motivator. When I saw him on the news describing what he and his guys were doing in New York I said oh I've got to be a part of that so when they came to Surrey I immediately started the training.

The training was very physical and included a lot of verbal abuse. The theory was to get you physically exhausted then see how you respond to verbal abuse when you're tired to prepare you to deal with it on the street. The purpose of the training was to screen out vigilantes who might be joining for the wrong reasons.

After I graduated I became the co chapter leader with Marcel and worked with Sebastian in Vancouver on a trip to Calgary and Edmonton. Sebastian was born in New York and raised in Vancouver. He was quite the talker and was very good at diffusing conflict. His passion for football always made him fist in when things got physical.

I really wanted to go to New York to see what it was like there so I did. It was wild. I loved it. When Jay Z said you can tell by my attitude that I'm definitely from New York, I came to understand exactly what that meant. The New York attitude was aggressive, powerful and confident. New Yorkers knew how to get sh*t done.

There was always a bit of rivalry between LA and New York. New York invented gangs but LA perfected them. When I was in New York most of the gangs had disappeared. The police would crack down on them if they wore colors so they stopped wearing colors just to get the police off their back. LA was more racial. I guess the Rodney King beating had something to do with that.

I knew a Latino guy from Canada who was in LA around that time. He said he was in a black area once and a lady told him they had to leave. He was like what do you mean? Then he saw a large group of black guys surround them. As they closed in he just kind of bowed his head, closed his eyes and clenched his fists in preparation of a beating.

Right at that moment he felt the wind rush up from underneath him. He opened his eyes and looked up. A police helicopter had spotted them and was hovering over them to protect them. The police saved his life. New York wasn't like that. We went from Harlem to Spanish Harlem without a problem. Most of the Guardian Angels were Black or Hispanic. They all got along fine. New York was totally hard core but it wasn't racial.

In Canada the Guardian Angels never got involved with drugs or prostitution. We just got involved with violent crime like muggings. New York was different. Crack was so violent and so invasive, Curtis had the group confront the crack dealers to diffuse the violence they created. That changed the game completely. It was much more confrontational and violent. Tut led that battle head on.

In Canada we had Lotus, the Red Eagles and Viet Ching but we never got involved in their business. We didn't have to. I remember one time I was doing a late night patrol in Vancouver with Shawn and he explained to me how it worked there.

He said if you see a van pull up in an alley and a bunch of guys jump out to beat someone up, we don't get involved with that. Why not, I asked. He said because those are enforcers who beat up johns that mistreat the prostitutes. Oh I understand. Nobody likes a john who mistreats a prostitute. Prostitution back then was a little more high end than it is now. That was before the Hells Angels took over.

So I saw the crack epidemic in New York first hand. I also saw the New York Model which transformed New York into a safe and prosperous place. Before that transformation was made possible, a crucial bust was made. They caught a dirty cop named Micheal Dowd who was helping the drug dealers instead of confronting them. It was all explained in a documentary on Netflix called the Seven Five. That was the name of the precinct in Brooklyn he was from. I didn't find out about that until years later.

The documentary about the Seven Five was profound. It was a tell all tale by Michael Dowd after he got out of prison. He admitted everything. Evidently, when I was in New York back in the /80's there was a grocery store in Brooklyn that sold cocaine to the distributors. Buyers would go to the back of the store and buy cocaine by the kilos.

Micheal Dowd would warn them every time the drug unit was going to do a raid so they could clear out the cocaine. We were risking our lives confronting the crack dealers up in Harlem and down on the Deuce and this dirty little POS was the one supplying them. At the time I had no idea. When I found that out years later I was pissed.

Micheal Dowd was a complete sleazebag. He was a dirty cop on the take and would give the drug dealers police escorts to move their money. After I saw the documentary a light went on. When I was in New York I stayed at the Headquarters on 155th Street in Harlem the first time then at the one on East 42nd Street the second time. Occasionally we'd ride the subway out to Brooklyn to visit Curt's mother.

I distinctly remember one occasion riding the subway through Brooklyn on the way back from visiting Curtis' mother. A cop sees me standing beside one of the exit doors and gets in my grill. He was like "What are you doing here?" I explained who I was and what I was doing. He just shook his head and said "These people don't care." He was astonished at my willingness to volunteer my services for that community. I remember thinking at the time that was a really bad attitude for a cop.

Years later after watching the documentary the Seven Five I realize the cop with the bad attitude that spoke to me on the train in Brooklyn looked an awful lot like a young Michael Dowd. That was his area at the time. New York is a big place and that would be somewhat ironic if it was him but it would certainly explain his bad attitude.

The point of the documentary is that confronting police corruption was a crucial element of the New York model. The New York model was based on enforcement - enforcing the law. One of the four pillars in the Four Pillars program. When you refuse to enforce the law, crime and exploitation skyrocket. That's why all these Liberal sh*t holes are full of crime and violence. They refuse to enforce the law.

That brings us to Vancouver DTES and the failed social experiment there. The DTES stands for Downtown East Side. East Vancouver has always been known as skid row. A place for the wineos and drug addicts. As each year it has become exponentially worse and is now completely out of control. This is what happens when you refuse to enforce the law. Crime and violence run rampant.

When I was young it was known as a place for wineos down on their luck. Alcoholics who have given up. My father and I worked with Margaret Fulton and Beth Jennings out of First United each summer at a seniors camp in Squamish called Paradise Valley. First United was located in the epicenter of the DTES.

I remember my father telling me a story about one of the rights of passage of becoming a minister in the United church. He said they used to give them five dollars and tell them to spend the night on the street in the DTES. It was supposed to show them how hard it was to make ends meet. Some had to choose between something to eat or a place to stay. One candidate got so frustrated with the task she bought a bottle of cheap wine and shared it with the wineos at pigeon park.

Heroin became a big problem and the DTES got a lot worse. Then came crack, crystal meth and fentanyl. Now things are completely out of control. Crack was the game changer. For the most part, heroin addicts kept to themselves and didn't harm anyone. Crack addicts were different. They were far more loud, aggressive and violent.

I remember patrolling the DTES with the Guardian Angels. On one occasion we were talking to a couple of locals outside blood alley and a crackhead joined the conversation. The guy we were speaking with frowned and just looked at me as if to say can you take him with you? Now that's all you find there. Everyone else is hiding from the aggressive violence. Seniors are exploited in the DTES continuously.

We used to take youth to volunteer at the Harbor Light food line. Some of the guys who worked there were part of the detox program they ran. One week we asked where one of the staff was and they said he fell off the wagon and went back to the drugs. It was really sad. Getting clean in the DTES is very hard to do. It's like going on a diet in a chocolate factory. Drugs are everywhere. If you want to get off the drugs, you have to leave that area. Sadly, many rehab houses outside the city are infiltrated with drug dealers pressuring clients to get back on the drugs. That is criminal.

What we are doing in the DTES is wrong. What we are allowing to happen in the DTES is wrong. That is why I can't serve there any more. It's just too frustrating. Sadly every Canadian city is having similar cesspools of crime and addiction because that is what the government is promoting. Some would say it's part of the WEF agenda. Others would say it's just stupidity. People who mean well do the wrong thing because they don't know any better. Yet it's not rocket science. Everyone can it's wrong.

New York City is the prime example. Rudy Giuliani saved New York while Bill de Blasio flushed it down the toilet. He turned it back into another Liberal sh*t hole like California. Politics can promote crime and violence or they can curb it. The choice is yours.

We all know what the agenda is. It's no secret any more. Everyone can see it. Unless you're wearing your mask over your eyes. I can confront evil but I can't fix stupid.

Fake News and the state of the Mainstream Media

Before we talk about the absolutely ridiculous state of the mainstream media we need to look at the media mergers that got us here. We all remember Conrad Black. He was a right wing media baron buying up all the newspapers and news outlets. The problem with media mergers is once you merge them into one entity, change the ownership and you change the news. It's like Eric Prince's mercenary army. Once you create a mercenary army, change the ownership and you change the war.

They say the first casualty of war is the truth. We have seen that first hand in the Ukraine. The media's defiant misrepresentation of the conflict in the Ukraine is astonishing. If they can lie about that war, they can lie about any other war. That's why Communism uses propaganda. Communism is slavery attained and maintained with lies. You'll own nothing and you'll be happy. We are all familiar with that slogan now. It has become a battle cry of the rebellion.

Tara Henley's resignation from the CBC was a dramatic event. She said she quit in disgust at the national network jettisoning journalistic integrity for a woke radical political agenda. Everything she said was true. The problem is that the radical agenda wasn't just found in the CBC, it has completely taken over the entire mainstream media. It starts off subtle then rapidly deteriorates into the absurd.

From Covid misrepresentation to fake environmentalism and the climate change police. Things have gone from bad to bat sh*t crazy overnight. People can argue about Covid until the cows come home but they can't argue about Omicron.

They said Omicron was going to be worse than Covid. They were wrong. Omicron was less than the seasonal flu. Locking down over Omicron was a criminal act. When viruses replicate themselves they get weaker not stronger. The media's malicious misrepresentation of Covid was part of the agenda.

Thankfully we have several medical coalitions that are posting the real science about Covid and are exposing the media's lies. The HART group in England, the Canada Health Alliance and the Canadian Covid Care Alliance are reliable sources of information about Covid. The mainstream media is not.

Freemasons, Muslims and QAnon

Before we dive into the agenda I just want to make a brief interjection pointing out the obvious. The Muslims and the Freemasons are not the problem. The Communist Party of China is the problem. Muslims and Freemasons believe in God. The Communist Party of China does not. George Washington, Benjamin Franklin and the founding Fathers of the US Constitution were Freemasons. My grandfather was a Freemason and so was I. All these conspiracy kooks that trash talk the Freemasons have no idea what they are talking about. Shriners are Freemasons. Give your head a shake.

The Muslims are our allies against the World Economic Forum's agenda. They have seen how Communism in China treats the Uyghurs. The CIA use false flag attacks to divide the resistance. QAnon was driven by the CIA. They tell you nine truths to get you hooked on one lie or in QAnon's cae, many lies.

The United Nations and their New World Order

Remember the logo for the United Nations' New World Order? I did not create it. I took a screenshot of their website at unnwo.org. After I blogged about it, they took the website down. Everyone talks about Klaus Schwab and the World Economic Forum. They are part of the problem. So are the UN and the WHO.

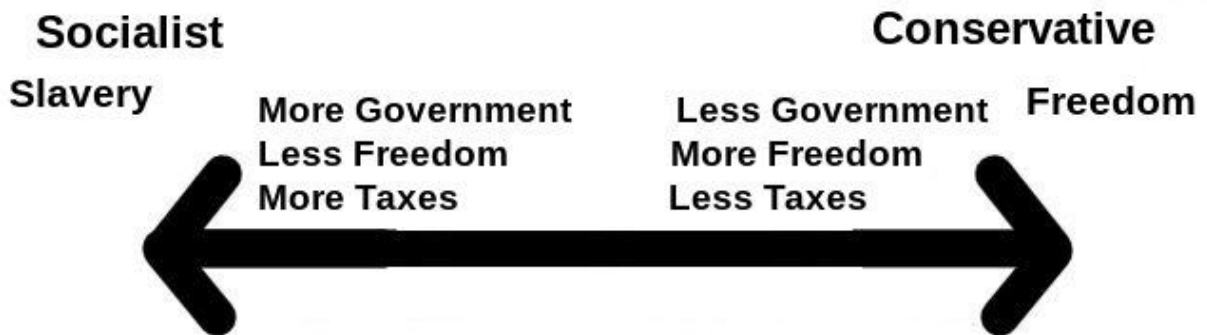

The Communist Party of China controls all three. When rich Capitalists fund Communism they aren't doing it so they can share their wealth. They are doing it so they can increase their wealth by turning everyone into slaves.

NATO is now run by the CCP. Remember who first used the term New World Order. It was the tax and spend Globalist George Bush. Mitt Romney and Mitch McConnell aren't just RINOs. They are Globalists like Biden and the Clintons.

George Bush is not a Conservative. He is a NeoCon. A NeoCon is a tax and spend pork barrel politician who supports Globalism and Corporate Communism. They call them New Conservatives when in reality they aren't Conservatives at all. They are new Con artists pretending to be Conservatives when they aren't.

The fake news obsesses over the linear left versus right model. They claim if you're a Conservative you're a right wing racist, homophobic Fascist when that clearly has absolutely nothing to do with it. Conservatives simply want less government, more freedom and less taxes. Fascists want more government. Conservatives want less government. To claim that the more Conservative you get, the more Fascist you become is a bold faced lie. Which is what Communism is based upon - lies.

The media's misrepresentation of Covid brings us to their misrepresentation of climate change and their endorsement of fake environmentalism. We have seen this come to a head in Holland. Farming is green. Banning farming to save the planet is a ridiculous lie. Starving people is Communism's MO.

First they give you cake. Then they starve you. After that, you take whatever they give you. Banning natural gas is a part of that same fraud. It has nothing to do with protecting the environment and everything to do with promoting the agenda. Soaring energy prices are part of the you'll own nothing and you'll be happy plan.

The Hells Angels are not the problem any more.

If the Hells Angels shoot a rival drug dealer that does not affect me at all. It doesn't stop me from going to the grocery store and buying food. It doesn't remove my mobility rights and prevent me from traveling inside or outside of the country. It doesn't stop me from going to work and earning a living. What Justin Trudeau is doing does affect me and my civil liberty. Justin Trudeau is a far worse criminal than the Hells Angels. He's stealing our freedom and the mainstream media is helping him do it.
